WELCOME ANCHORAGES 2024

ELCOME to the cruising waters of Scotland and the north of Ireland.

In your hands you have the comprehensive quide to all marinas and those anchorages where there are facilities ashore, stretching northwards from Eyemouth, or Sligo, or Ardglass, or Stranraer.

Wherever your 'port of entry' your cruise northwards can be made all the more enjoyable by using Welcome Anchorages as your extra crew member, advising on safe havens to visit en route, as well as locations for equipment stockists, sail repairs, engine parts etc.

Similarly, if you are joining at the Shetlands or Orkney, your cruise south down either the west coast or east coast, can be guided by this annually updated publication.

And don't forget the canals! While magnificent and picturesque, referring to them simply as 'short cuts' does them a massive disservice, but they certainly do save time going from the Firth of Clyde to the west coast proper, via the Crinan Canal, or from the North Sea to the Western Isles courtesy of the mighty Caledonian Canal - look out for the monster in Loch Ness!

As usual, your Welcome Anchorages cockpit companion has been dissected into the six natural, popular sailing sectors in the north of the British Isles, each with its own designated colour and whereas this publication is the recognised northern cruising quide, it is not intended to be as technically comprehensive as the various CCC Sailing Directions.

Also in this year's Welcome Anchorages, you'll see a number of marina centres showing the British Marine Scotland logo. They all maintain a code of quality and responsibility demanded by their membership of this national trade organisation.

Welcome Anchorages' popular news pages section, highlights new amenities and facilities upgrades, most of it supporting 'Awakening the Giant' the strategic framework for developing Scotland's marine tourism sector, created in 2015 and now really flexing its muscles going forward under the promotional banner of 'Giant Strides. Have a safe and enjoyable 2024 cruising season.

Managing moorings for all

Demand for mooring and anchorage space is high. With over 5000 mooring licences in Scotland, we take a lead role in managing the provision of mooring space for the boating community.

At Crown Estate Scotland we have a licensing system in place to help manage access to the marine environment while protecting the interests of other marine users, and work with Scottish Government, RYA Scotland, Scottish Canals, the West Highland Anchorages & Moorings Association and many voluntary moorings associations.

New Marina Facilities At JWD Greenock

PPOINTED by James Watt Marina Ltd., Marina Projects has been working on the development of a new purpose built marina and operations building that aims to take customer service at Greenock to the next level.

Marina Projects have negotiated with the landowner to secure a prominent location for the development in order to generate maximum future value from the marina building upon completion.

Initial concept plans were developed with customer service leading the key design considerations.

The new building will be situated in the heart of James Watt Marina providing direct links between landside and on water

Graeme Galbraith marina manager commented, "This is an exciting time at James Watt Dock Marina, especially for our berth holders, and together with the marina team we are all looking forward to the grand opening later this year of our 400sq.m building that represents an investment of over £850,000."

The building will provide a welcoming open plan customer foyer and reception, marina operations offices, marina manager office as well as a meeting room overlooking the marina that will also be fully serviced and available for hire.

The central entrance will also lead to innovative family rooms, each featuring an individual shower, wash hand basin and toilet. Adding a particularly luxurious touch; one dedicated family bathroom will be provided complete with children's entertainment VDU as well as a large freestanding bath.

The building will also house a hub of marine trades as well as a food and beverage offering, both flanking the central marina operations and customer facilities.

Gold Award For Bangor Marina

Bangor Marina in Northern Ireland has achieved the 5 Gold Anchor Award presented by the Yacht Harbour Association (TYHA); a recognition that symbolises the highest standards of 'marina quality, customer service and overall experience.

Bangor Marina is part of national boating business and marina operator, Boatfolk, which currently has 11 marinas across the UK, including Rhu Marina on the Clyde.

Nestled on the southern shores of Belfast Lough, Bangor Marina's stunning backdrop complements its well-maintained pontoons and facilities.

Kevin Baird, harbour master and marina manager, commented, "The 5 Gold Anchor Award reflects the hard work. dedication, and passion our entire team invests in to provide an exceptional experience for boaters."

Hanse 410 Demo Based at Kip

nspiration Marine's brand-new Hanse 410 demonstrator (above) is berthed at Kip Marina alongside examples of the Hanse 460 and Moody DS41, available to view and test sail by appointment.

The Hanse 410 is the newest 41ft model from the German builder, combining the easy sailing concept with light, spacious interiors and available with a choice of either two or three cabins and an electric drive or diesel engine.

Sales activity in Scotland for both new and used boats has remained strong over the last 12 months with Michael Schmidt & Partner, Inspiration Marine's dedicated brokerage arm, reporting high levels of interest in both sail and power.

James McPhail, Kip sales manager for Inspiration Marine commented, "The market generally is encouraging and we are looking forward to getting the new Hanse 410 out on the water to show what a fantastic boat she is."

News From The Isles

• Easdale, one of the Slate Islands in the Firth of Lorne, now boasts a shop majoring in handmade soaps!

Despite a small population of only 60 residents, the island business begun by Bethan Smith and run from her garden shed is proving successful and is now listed as a local attraction on Easdale alongside a slate museum, community hall and a pub.

Visitors should look out for Mrs Smith's soap shed 'Siabann Eisdeal' Gaelic for Easdale Soap.

• The National Trust for Scotland has brought a group of Scottish islands under its protection. They are the eight uninhabited Treshnish Isles located in the Inner Hebrides west of Mull.

The now protected area is a nesting site for Puffins and Guillemots as well sea water boasting basking sharks and minke whales.

• Unst, the most northerly point of the Shetland Islands is to become the UK's first spaceport for vertical launched rockets. Up to 30 launches a year are planned from the SaxaVord Spaceport, sending satellites and various other payloads into space.

The spaceport has been built on the site of a former RAF radar station on the remote Shetland peninsula.

Mobile Rigging Service On The Clyde

rgyll Yacht Riggers have established a permanent presence on the Clyde, strategically located near Kip Marina.

The addition of a new mobile workshop enhances the rigger's accessibility to Kip, Largs and Troon Yacht Havens, James Watt Dock, and Clyde Marina.

Argyll Yacht Riggers now offers a range of services from their Clyde base including swaging, standing rigging and handling wire diameters up to 16mm, all performed to the exacting standards of Petersen Stainless Rigging, an ISO9001 and AS9100 compliant company.

An additional suite of services includes rig tuning, splicing running rigging for racers and cruisers, and the installation of cutting-edge furlers from reputable brands such as Harken, Profurl and Furlex.

This expansion marks a significant step for the company, with the new Clyde yacht service poised to become a hub for sailing enthusiasts seeking premium marine services in the heart of the popular sailing region.

Iconic Coll Hotel Upgraded

he Coll Hotel has always been a favourite stop off and watering hole for yachties since the days of Alastair and Shirley Oliphant, in the early 60s. The hotel was the place where sailors could get a warm welcome, hot shower and a great pint; which continues today, along with one of the most popular restaurants on the west coast.

In 1984, Kevin Oliphant and his new wife, Julie, moved to the Isle of Coll from Eastbourne in Sussex to take over the family business.

After the initial excitement of moving to this most beautiful west coast Scottish island, it soon became apparent that the business was in urgent need of major refurbishment and financial injection - had we bitten off more than we could chew? they thought...

"Though we were young and full of energy and whilst we recognised the incredible opportunity, we faced a huge challenge to turn the business around. With a massive amount of work, commitment and sacrifice, the millennium year saw us turn that corner.

"Since then the hotel has gone from strength to strength, winning a host of regional and national hospitality awards and in 2014 we were absolutely thrilled when our daughter, Laura, moved back to Coll to take over the reins of this now iconic hotel."

Third generation family business carries enormous pressure, which she has embraced wholeheartedly and Laura has driven the hotel forward once more, overseeing a large building project which incorporates a new restaurant, lounge bar, public bar and four more bedrooms.

British Marine Drives Removal Of Boat Berthings From Visitor Levy Bill

N A MOVE welcomed by marine tourism stakeholders and the Parliamentary Committee leading on the controversial Visitor Levy Bill, the Scottish Government has agreed to introduce an amendment to remove boat moorings and berthings from the scope of the levy, unless the vessels are permanently moored and used for accommodation.

"This is a relief as the Visitor Levy would place an excessive burden on mooring providers, which includes many small businesses and voluntary organisations," explained Sarah Kennedy, chair of British Marine Scotland.

Lesley Robinson, CEO, British Marine added: "This amendment will help safeguard leisure marine businesses and ensure boating in Scotland remains appealing to all."

"We are grateful to the role of the Cross-Party Group on Recreational Boating and Marine Tourism and its Convenor, Stuart McMillan MSP, who helped to facilitate discussions with the Minister and his officials, alongside significant support from Marc Crothall and the Scottish Tourism Alliance", Sarah Kennedy

"We at British Marine Scotland are delighted with this development and look forward to continued collaboration with the Scottish Government to support and enhance marine tourism."

Cruise The Clyde In Company

HERE ARE few things more special in life than experiencing the joy and sense of freedom that a week or two on board a sailing yacht can bring. There are also few places in this world where you can experience the feeling of being an intrepid adventurer in the middle of nowhere surrounded only by sea and mountains and then, a mere hour or so later, be sitting in front of a cosy fireplace in a local pub enjoying a glass of your favourite tipple. A sailing holiday on the Clyde allows you to experience all of this and much much

Based in Largs Yacht Haven, Flamingo Yacht Charters is on a mission to promote just how amazing sailing on the Clyde can be and are now offering mini flotillas and guided sailing charters of the area.

Often overlooked by those focused on heading to the Western Isles, the Hebrides and further afield, the Clyde can offer a myriad of interesting sailing destinations and can easily rival any of the best sailing locations in the world. The only difficulty you will have when planning an itinerary for a week or two will be where to go first and whether or not to book that special restaurant in advance!

To help you plan your trip, Flamingo Yacht Charters have put together a snapshot of some of the key places that should feature in your Clyde itinerary.

LARGS YACHT HAVEN

Largs Yacht Haven is a great starting point for your sailing holiday on the Clyde. Located close to the seaside town of Largs it is easily accessible by road, rail and air links. This large full-service marina is home to Flamingo Yacht Charters and provides everything you could need at the start of your trip. Its location is well suited for a journey north, south or west into the Clyde sailing area.

MILLPORT & THE ISLE OF CUMBRAE

A short hop from Largs, this Victorian seaside resort town transports you back in time. With home-made ice cream, fish and chips, an artisan gin distillery and a plethora of sandy beaches to enjoy, it is easy to spend a day in the town or grab a bike from one of the hire shops and explore this lovely little island.

WEE CUMBRAE

A fascinating place to spend some time. Careful anchoring in the bay by the castle is rewarded by peace and tranquillity. Head ashore to visit the castle or walk over the top of the island to the old lighthouse. Don't forget to indulge is a spot of seal watching before you haul anchor as the resident seal population love to lounge on the rocks in the bay.

ARRAN

The majestic island of Arran is not to be missed on any Clyde voyage. Dramatic mountains tower above the northern end of the island adding to the atmospheric feel. Dolphins, whales, basking sharks and porpoises are among the species that can often be spotted in these waters.

TARBERT

A visit to this lively harbour town is a must. A great place to spend the night on the pontoons, re-stock supplies and enjoy some local seafood.

PORTAVADIE

With an open-air infinity pool with stunning views available for overnight marina guests to use, what more could you ask for? This small marina development is worth visiting for an evening to relax surrounded by Highland scenery whilst enjoying the up-market facilities and restaurant.

SECRET LOCATIONS

There are also plenty of 'secret' locations that feature in a Clyde itinerary. All the locals have their own particular favourites and are often happy to share their knowledge. The skippers at Flamingo Yacht Charters have hand-picked some hidden gems for clients too. There are so many to discover you will never be bored poring over the charts and planning where to explore next!

Perhaps you are new to sailing and would like to charter a yacht with a skipper on board to let you sit back and relax or maybe you would like to hire and skipper a yacht but would like to cruise in company with other yachts and likeminded sailors? To experience the best of what the Clyde sailing area has to offer, why not get in touch with Flamingo Yacht Charters, based at Largs Yacht Haven and ask them for more information about their "Cruise The Clyde in Company" mini flotillas starting in early 2024.

The Crinan Canal meanders through truly magnificent scenery which is rich in history, with many world-class heritage sites, a designated wildlife reserve and miles of forest walks and cycle ways. It runs between Ardrishaig, at the north west extremity of the Firth of Clyde, to Crinan on the "outside" west coast and allows the user to avoid the lengthy passage around the Mull of Kintyre.

Though only 14.5km in length there is just so much to see and do from walking, cycling, fishing or just taking time out to explore Knapdale. So step back in time, relax, slow down and stretch those sea legs ashore.

Visit the Egg Shed, treat yourself to a souvenir in the gift shop and discover the rich history of the Crinan Canal in the exhibition space with artifacts from Scottish Canals displayed alongside items supplied by the local community.

FACT FILE

The Crinan Canal is 14.5km (9 miles) in length with 15 locks and seven bridges. The sea locks and Lock 14 are mechanised and operated for you by Scottish Canals staff. All bridges are also operated by Scottish Canals staff.

Inland locks are manually operated and involve pushing lock gates and winding sluices. Indeed, many of our customers report back that working the locks is an enjoyable part of the Crinan passage. Please contact one of the sea locks or the canal office if you feel that you will require assistance.

CANAL LICENCE

A range of licences are available from short term to long term. In addition explorer licences may be purchased which are valid for all Scottish Canals. Fully-serviced pontoons and moorings are available for long-term berthing at Bellanoch Marina. Winter moorings are also available at a number of locations. Full details may be obtained from Canal Offices or from scottishcanals.co.uk.

FACILITIES

Transit berths are available throughout the canal. Toilets, showers and laundry facilities, shore power and water, Wi-Fi and local services are all available at various locations along the canal – please check the Skipper's Guide for specific information. Due to environmental legislation, we are unable to provide water hoses. Please remember to bring your own.

PILOTS

The Clyde Cruising Club produces excellent sailing directions for the Firth of Clyde, whilst the Imray "Crinan to Colonsay" and 'Isle of Mull and approaches' pilots both cover the canal.

CHARTS

Admiralty charts "Lower Loch Fyne" no 2381, "Lochs and Harbours in the Sound of Jura" no 2476 and "Crinan to the Firth of Lorn" no 2326 all include the Crinan Canal, as do Imray charts C63, C64 and C65.

HOURS OF OPERATION

The Crinan Canal operates on a seasonal basis: seven days per week in peak season, Monday to Saturday during spring and autumn and Monday to Friday during winter. Please check with local Canal Office or scottishcanals.co.uk for exact operating dates and times.

Explore the heart of the Scottish Highlands

The Caledonian Canal offers a coast-to-coast link through spectacular scenery in the heart of the Scottish Highlands. Stretching from Inverness in the east to Fort William in the west, the canal is approximately 96.5km (60 miles) in length, of which 34.5km (22miles) is man-made and the remainder being formed by natural fresh water lochs.

There are 29 locks and 11 swing bridges along the waterway, all of which are operated by trained staff. Allow a minimum of four days to transit the canal, and more if you wish to explore further the many attractions of the Great Glen, particularly during our busy summer season.

CHANNEL DIMENSIONS

Length 45.72m (150ft) Beam 10.67m (35ft)

Draught 4.1m (13ft 5in*)

*Vessels with freshwater draught over 3m (9.8ft) MUST contact the canal office in advance. Maximum mast height in the canal is 35m (115ft) above the waterline, but clearance under the Kessock Bridge on the Inverness Firth is lower at 29m (95ft) at mean high water springs.

CANAL LICENCES

A range of visitor licences are available which are valid for all Scottish Canals. Full details of great value transit and short-term stay packages may be obtained from scottishcanals.co.uk and from our Canal Office. Competitive rates for winter mooring are also available; call the Canal Office on 01463 725500 for more details.

Purchase your licence online prior to arrival at scottishcanals.co.uk, where our Skipper's Guide is also available to download. This guide contains navigation information to help make your transit through the canal safe and enjoyable.

FACILITIES

Transit berths are available throughout the canal. Toilets, showers and laundry facilities, shore power and water, diesel and pumpout, Wi-Fi and local services are all available at various locations along the canal - please check Skipper's Guide for specific information. Scotland's coast-to-coast and city-to-city link

Take a turn on the world's only rotating boat lift, sail beneath the soaring steel of The Kelpies, the largest equine sculptures on the planet, and moor up in the hearts of Edinburgh and Glasgow – the Forth & Clyde and Union Canals offer experiences that just can't be found anywhere else. and Union Canals offer experiences that just can't be found anywhere else.

FACT FILE

The Forth & Clyde Canal is approximately 57km (35 miles) in length with 40 locks. A minimum of 21 hours (two full days) underway should be allowed, and sufficient time should be added for passage from Port Edgar and negotiation of the River Carron to the Sea Locks. The Union Canal is 51km long (31 miles), and a minimum of 12 hours underway should be allowed.

Scottish Canals staff will be on hand to assist at all locks and bridges on the Forth & Clyde Canal, but craft must have sufficient crew to assist staff with lockings.

CANAL LICENCES

A range of visitor licences are available which are valid for all Scottish Canals. Full details of great value transit and short term stay packages may be obtained from scottishcanals.co.uk or our Canal Offices.

DE-MASTING

Yachts will require to de-mast for passage. This service is provided by Scottish Canals at Bowling and the canal link at The Helix. This is included in your licence fee, however boat crew must carry out all mast work. Independent contractors also operate on Port Edgar, on the Firth of Forth where a charge will be made at the boat owner's own cost. Large or complex masts may need to be stepped at one of the Clyde marinas, at the boat owner's own cost. Boat owners must ensure that their masts/stays and securing equipment is in a suitable condition for ease of dismantling. If this is deemed not to be the case and time is spent trying to free equipment which exceeds the normal duration for demasting. There may be a charge applied to the boat owner for the exceeded time taken to carry out this task.

Ardglass is a major fishing port, and its marina is a useful stopping place on a coastal passage north or south, as it is close to the direct course and can be entered in all weather conditions. It is also a convenient spot to await a favourable tide for entering Strangford Lough.

Phennick Cove Marina has modern facilities, and is just 6 miles from Downpatrick, where most services are available.

Ardglass began as an Anglo-Norman port, then grew when exporting grain in the 15th Century. Its many historic buildings give the village a unique character.

The renowned golf course is immediately south of the harbour, and welcomes visitors.

Overnight rate for 'average' 40ft yachts is £40.00 excluding electricity (electricity £1.00 per night).

FIRTH of CLYDE

HE CLYDE Estuary's numerous islands, many small towns and sheltered anchorages offer an attractive and safe place to sail, but the Clyde is also important as a base for wider cruising activity. The remainder of Scotland's west coast is accessible through the Crinan Canal, as is the east coast and Scandinavia via the Forth & Clyde and Caledonian Canals, Ireland and the northern Irish Sea is approximately a day's sail away.

Sailing in the Firth of Clyde splits into four areas, enabling the sailor to find water that is suited to his boat, level of experience, the weather, and crew ability. The east shore has the majority of the large marinas used for permanent berthing, good transport links and easy access from centres of population. The western areas generally offer destinations; places where sailors wish to visit, and they vary from secluded anchorages to harbours with pontoons and other village amenities.

Upstream the River Clyde and its sea lochs are well suited to powered craft and smaller sailing yachts, with Glasgow City again turning its face to the river and seeking to attract more activity on the water. Berthing facilities which now exist close to Glasgow City Centre will enable a cruising yacht to visit for a few days, or more.

To the south is the North Channel and the seaways from Ireland, England and Wales. For many visiting cruising folk this is the routeway to Scottish cruising. With good havens on the mainland coast, and the grandeur of Ailsa Craig and Arran on the horizon, it is a splendid introduction to cruising in Scottish waters.

Cruising on the Clyde has many advantages over land based touring, where, unless a ferry can be taken, long journeys around the heads of the lochs take up much of the time. On a yacht you can hope for a more direct line. This is a great source of satisfaction in itself and it soon becomes apparent why this region became so highly developed for industry and tourism long before road or rail travel was practicable.

There are walks ashore and the Three Lochs Way goes through the upper part of the village. There is a train station and a half hourly bus service to Helensburgh. All the facilities are a short walk from the shore on the east side of the loch. Although a lot of sailors are apprehensive about a Faslane Naval Base there is nothing to fear so long as you are within 150 yards of the west side of the loch, ie west of the prohibited area marked on all charts. Once north of the naval base head across to the east side of the loch and the visitor moorings are located very close to the shore on the east side.

VISIT LOCHRANZA

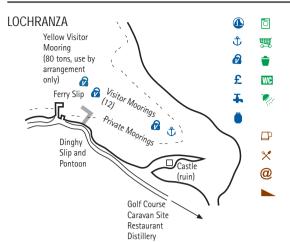

The Lochranza Country Inn (formerly the Lochranza Hotel) is owned by the North Arran Community Benefit Society on behalf of the communities of Lochranza, Catacol and Pirnmill. It's nestled in the designated "North Arran National Scenic Area" at the northern tip of the beautiful Isle of Arran, "Scotland in Miniature". We have delightful walks and an abundance of wildlife including seals, otters, red squirrels, red deer and golden eagles.

We have been open since spring 2023 and now look forward to greeting our guests for the season onwards. Our opening times are available via our website, Facebook and Instagram.

CLYDE - ISLANDS

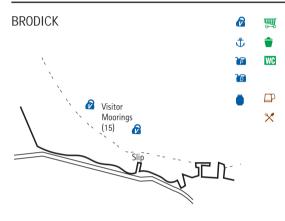

The Lochranza anchorage is set in scenic surroundings at the centre of the Clyde's cruising area. Shoreside Facilities include a hotel, sandwich and coffee bar and a distillery offering tours. Opposite the distillery there is a golf course, caravan and camping site with showers (small charge), laundrette and a restaurant. The landing/occasional berthing pontoon (limit 45ft/8 tons) is for daytime use only. The depth on outer pontoon is 2m at low tide. Blue visitor buoys are for overnight stays. Donations towards maintenance suggested £10-£15 or £20.

Approach from south west to avoid the reef. A bus service connects with other villages and Brodick Ferry.

Kilchoan Bay is a beautiful and quiet anchorage. The four moorings are regularly checked by the West Ardnamurchan Jetty Association and are maintained to a high standard.

Kilchoan Community Centre has a tearoom, free Wi-Fi, and many other useful services, including tourist information.

There is a public bar with food available at Kilchoan House Hotel 01972 510200 (1.2km). It is a six mile walk to Ardnamurchan Point, Britain's most westerly mainland point, complete with its lighthouse and visitor centre. Another road leads north west across the extinct volcanic crater at Achnaha to the stunning beaches at Sanna and the Viking burial at Port an Eilean Mhuir.

Strontian moorings are situated at the head of Loch Sunart amongst mountains and wooded shores. The voyage up the loch is an interesting exercise in pilotage but not as daunting as the pilot books suggest, just a few rocks to dodge. The Jetty and moorings are situated a 1 mile walk from the village and services.

For the 2018 season three visitor moorings are planned off the jetty, run by the Sunart Community Company. There will be no fixed charge, however a voluntary donation of £10/ night would be gratefully received towards maintenance. Collection boxes located at village shop, post office, Strontian Hotel.

A Change at the Helm...

EVER since the first edition of Welcome Anchorages appeared on chandlery counters and marina offices back in 2008, the annual guide to moorings and pontoons linked to shoreside facilities has grown in size and coverage, now serving the entire coasts of Scotland and the North of Ireland.

Over the years the size of the publication has jumped from 32 to 80 informative, colourful pages and Welcome Anchorages has become affectionately known as the 'Yacht Skipper's Cruising Bible.'

Publisher and editor Alistair Vallance, who is now retiring from business and consequently, his hand on the tiller of Welcome Anchorages, recalls a vibrant 16 year period in the ongoing development of the leisure sailing offering in the north.

There have been many memorable milestones all contributing to the greatly enlarged leisure marine facilities we can all now enjoy. This was generated in the first instance by development initiatives from British Marine Scotland, Sail Scotland, Scottish Tourist Board, Crown Estate Scotland and from an Irish/ Scottish perspective, the creation of Malin Waters as a marketing thrust to promote sailing on the west coast.

One major marketing campaign emerged from the above organisations working together; the emergence of 'The Sleeping Giant' research programme and its positive consequences of increased berthing and shoreside facilities which, year on year, were duly recorded in updated editions of Welcome Anchorages.

The last 16 years have seen a constant move towards building an ever-enlarging leisure sailing infrastructure to ensure that cruising skippers and crews of the future will enjoy life at sea and

And going forward, Welcome Anchorages will record all the updates year by year, with the new production team at the helm.

I wish them well and to our readers, have a safe/ Cheers: and enjoyable time afloat Slainte Mhath
